

ABSTRACT

DEFINATION : FRIENDS/FAMILY TRACKER

The world has seen an immense transformation in the last few decades in terms of Technology, from self-driving cars to manipulating Big Data, human beings have gone to an extend which makes even an illiterate capable enough to bring about a big change for the generations to come. It has given a person power to access the data from across the globe on his miniature device.

Everyone in the modern times has utilized this technology in their own fine way. People crave to be a socially active for some sake, from Facebook to Instagram and Twitter, everyone is trying to stay connected with the loved and close ones in every possible way. With this Android application, the user gets to keep a track of all their friends and family through their mobile phones. It's an exciting feeling to always know where your friends are. And the chances are that you might be strolling around in a particular locality and we to know that one of your friends is in the same space then we could just catch him up for some surprise.

The application would also have a special feature through which you can send in notifications to people you are connected to. It gives an high level of security to the users, as they would always have someone who could keep a track of their location and in case of an Emergency user could just notify all his connections for the help. It's an appealing concept for the masses as well as the aged and some cool features in it would add much more interactivity from the user point of view.
